STEAMBOATS

Apply to BENJ. MUMFORD.

Mr. McIntyre closes his Daguerri Gallery to-morrow; therefore, those who are desirous of securing a splendid and very accurate picture of themselves for their friends should visit him to-day or to-morrow, without fail. There are few artists in the country who can take such perfect likenesses, by this process; and when it is so quickly done, and at such trifling cost, no one should neglect to secure so dear a memento of those whom they love.

On Saturday, Mr. McIntyre's establishment, building, apparatus, furniture, specimens, &c., will all be sold at auction, without reserve. It will afford a good opportunity for any one to purchase, who may desire to carry on the business.

Dr. Gregory, Secretary of the Boston Female Medical School gave a lecture yesterday afternoon to females, and one in the evening to males, on the subject of educating women for the Medical profession and especially to attend upon their own sex in the department of Midwifery.

The School in Boston has been in operation about two years, and it has been well patronized; we learn that about thirty females have graduated, and are now practicing in different parts of the country; and that they have been very successful in the treatment of patients. Dr. Gregory will call upon our citizens for the purpose of seeking pecuniary aid to assist in establishing the School on a still firmer and more comprehensive basis; and also with the hope of obtaining one or more pupils for the institution, for the Autumn term.

MELANCOLY CASE OF DROWNING FROM ON BOARD THE EMPIRE STATE.—A young man about 25 years of age, belonging to Washington, D. C., while on the passage from New York to Fall River, last night, on board the Empire State, fell from the platform near the outboard of the boat, where he had gone to smoke a cigar, and instantly disappeared. The accident occurred at about 10 o'clock. There was a very dense fog at the time. Nothing was seen of the young man after his fall, nor any exclamation heard from him. He was seen by some of the crew as he was pitching head first into the water. He was on this stage was ascertained to be Daniel Eaton. —Mail, 9th.

TO A FRIEND.

Oh let us not feel lonely, Joe,
Though life seems dark and dreary;
A few bright spots there are, you know,
Where tempests never enter or blow,
And the sun shines out as cheery.

What thought so many hearts, dear Joe,
Are cold as bleak December!
At least in ours the kindling glow
Of love and faith, shall brighter grow,
Like purities in September.

A warm and loving heart, dear Joe,
Oh, who would live without it?
Let fools hug close a heart like snow,
So cold—while "feeling's" genial flow
Congeals to ice about it.

And when our pates are white with years,
Our withered bodies bending
Beside a bed of crushing care—
Our love shall mingle with our tears,
"With Death," a cordial blending.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10.—The bark Pollock, at this port, from Liverpool, fell in with on the 30th ult., lat. 40, lon. 02, brig Consuelo, of Richmond, Me., from Piquet for Newport, R. I., with a cargo of coal, in a sinking condition, having sprung a leak three days before in a terrible gale from the S. E., and lost her crew. Took off the captain and crew, 8 in number, and brought them into port.

A TRUE LAWYER.—Alexander Hamilton was once applied to as counsel by a man having the guardianship of several orphans, who would, on coming of age, succeed to a large estate, of which there was a material defect in the title deeds, known only to their guardian who wanted to get the estate vested in himself. Hamilton asked down the faithless executor's statement, and then said to him, "Settle with these unhappy infants honorably to the last cent, or I will hunt you from your skin like a hare." The advice was strictly followed, and the man, who gave it was an ornament to the bar, and to the age he lived in.

"You labor overmuch your composition," said a stippant clergyman to a venerable divine. "I write a sermon in three hours, and make nothing of it." "So, your congregation says," quoth the doctor.

Dr. Berghman, the opera singer, it is said, has gone into a convent in Canada.

BY TELEGRAPH.

3 days later from Europe.

HALIFAX TELEGRAPH OFFICE,
Monday, 10 1/2 A. M.

The steamship Asia was telegraphed this morning at about half-past eight o'clock, and arrived at her wharf at quarter past 10.

Yesterday and last night we had a heavy gale of wind and rain from the Eastward, which has undoubtedly caused great loss of property and life, along the coast. Towards morning the wind shifted into the N. W., and is now blowing very heavy from that quarter. The wires to the westward of this city are supposed to be badly broken, and this despatch will be forwarded by the New Brunswick Express to the first office having a western circuit.

The Asia sailed from Liverpool at 12 o'clock, noon. The Canada arrived at Liverpool at 5 1/2 A. M. on the 26th.

The steamers of this line running between Liverpool and New York will hereafter run direct. The Asia will not call at Halifax on her return from New York.

The Murray Market continues easy. Several leading bankers have lowered their rates of interest on deposits. Consols 60 1/2 for money and accounts. India doing in U. S. stocks and prices remain as last week. Trade continues brisk in the manufacturing districts.

The weather has been unfavorable for harvesting operations, and the yield is not likely to be as great as was anticipated.

Louis Philippe died on the 20th August.

Louis Napoleon is still on his tour through the Provinces.

The Queen has gone to Scotland.

Austria has given in her adhesion to the English protection on the Danish question. There is nothing new from the seat of war, beyond an account of some slight skirmishes.

The sub-marine telegraph between Dover and Calais has been completed, and works well.

CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.

SENATE.—After the usual opening business was disposed of, Mr. Douglas presented the credentials of Senator Gwin, and Mr. Harwell those of Col. Fremont.

Mr. Harwell remarked that while he entertained the strongest objections to the admission of California, yet he was willing to show the highest personal regard for the Senators elect.

Mr. Jefferson Davis moved to refer the credentials to the Judiciary Committee to report upon the day, deeming it his solemn course taken and the unconstitutionality of the admission of California.

Mr. Douglas hoped that no such action would be taken. Mr. Pöte expressed himself in the most unambiguous manner.

Mr. Jefferson Davis called for the yeas and nays, which were ordered.

Messrs. Butler, Turner, Mason and Berrien stated the grounds upon which they should favor the reference.

Mr. Clay said that California was now a state of the Union and upon equal footing with other States; and that he saw no ground for refusing to admit her Senators upon this plea which would not apply to all other states. Further debate was stopped, and the motion to refer lost by 12 to 20.

Senators Gwin and Fremont were sworn in and seated.

They drew for terms. Col. Fremont drew first class and Mr. Gwin, the third.

Mr. Fremont then gave notice of a dozen or more bills for the public benefit of California.

HOUSE.—An error was discovered in the special mileage bill, which, however, being passed, the House refused to reconsider.

Mr. Huber offered a resolution of inquiry into the expediency of altering the contract of the Atlantic steamers, to require them to stop at Belfast.

The bill for carrying out the provisions of the Mexican treaty was referred to the committee of the whole.

The Judiciary committee were discharged from the investigation of the conduct of Judge Irwin of Pittsburgh.

The House then resumed the consideration of the report of the Ewing Committee, and Mr. Vinton is now speaking.

THE REHEARSAL OF JENNY LIND'S FIRST CONCERT.—The first full rehearsal of the Grand Concert for to-morrow night took place yesterday at Castle Garden. Judging from the effect produced upon the few who heard it, we should guess that the hundreds of tickets will not consider them too dearly purchased. As a partial relief to the general curiosity concerning this rehearsal, we give the impressions of a friend whose musical experience entitles his opinion to respect:

We have just returned from Jenny Lind's first grand rehearsal. We went there by no means strongly prejudiced in her favor. We have returned another man.

Unfortunately, (for ourselves,) we arrived too late to hear the "Casta Diva," or at least the whole of it, but the concluding passages surprised us no little. Still we had our doubts about her, when she began to sing with Signor Belloni the Duo from "I Turchi in Italia." Before it was over, we had almost entered another world; we hardly believed that human voice could accomplish what the Swedish vocalist made palpable to our ears. Such perfect execution, such invariably true, even and correct intonation, such natural expressions in all the middle and lower register of her voice (a part which we expected to find deficient) we never heard before.

We have heard many, nay, nearly all the great vocalists of our age; we were there, and ready to draw comparisons; we were cool and unprejudiced, but she completely disarmed us of criticism.

We have spoken of the middle and lower part of her voice; the upper we expected, of course, to find remarkably brilliant, dazzling and effective. Strange as it may seem, we found it neither brilliant nor dazzling, in the common acceptance of the terms, but effective, beyond all conception. And herein, if we may be allowed to judge from a mere rehearsal, consists its great attraction. She does all this without straining effort. The Nightingale, to which she has been justly compared, does not pour out its melody with more ease, its notes do not gush forth with more freedom and copiousness according to Nature's pitch and scale, than do Jenny Lind's, according to Art's strictest rules.

As an instance, which may serve to show that we were not alone in our enthusiasm, we would mention that at the close of the first part of the Trio Concertante for the two flutes and voice, (in which Mr. Siede, one of the finest flutists of the age, plays second flute,) the orchestra came to a dead stop. They had been listening to the vocalist and had forgot their parts and all else. There they stood with open mouths, until Mr. Benedict told them that they "must not listen, if they wanted to play their parts." And that orchestra conjoined George Loder, who played the double bass, and Theodore Eisfeldt, both well known conductors and not easily carried away by enthusiasm. In the Trio, her voice not only could not be distinguished from the flute, absolutely was an improvement on it, and of the three nightingales supposed to be heard then, she was unquestionably the best. An incident occurred during the Trio which deserves notice. At a pause, the bell of a steamboat at the landing near by, struck twice and happened to strike at the exact pause in her song. At first we ourselves thought it was an orchestra effect, so perfectly did its clear tones harmonize with the voice of the songstress. The bell happened to be exactly in tune, and striking the same note with her, and the echo at first deceived all the listeners. Her D, in all, clear, beautiful and brilliant, merveilleux. But we will not forget our readers' enjoyment for Wednesday night.

Yet we cannot close this article without a word about Mr. Benedict, and Sig. Belloni. The former is well known to all of us by his works; the latter, we can assure our readers, is among Baritones what Jenny is among Sopranos, at least as far as we have heard in this country. —N. York Tribune.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT ON THE WESTERN RAILROAD.—Three Passengers Killed and a number Wounded.—The Springfield Republican of yesterday (Tuesday) morning, contains the following account of a painful accident which occurred between Pittsfield and that town on the evening previous:

"Last night's passenger train from Albany did not arrive till after 10 o'clock—two hours behind its usual hour in consequence of a sad disaster, which befell it when about two miles West of the Washington summit.

"While going at the rate of 26 miles the hour, the forward axle of the second passenger car broke, letting it down upon the track; and in this condition it was dragged along at a rapid rate of speed for at least three hundred yards—the broken axle, truck, &c., breaking through the floor and flying up among the crowded passengers; the car at the same time bounding and grinding along, partly on its remaining wheels and partly on the track and sleepers.

"The scene that was witnessed in the cars, among the passengers, it is impossible to describe. All was the most terrible confusion. Scarcely any escaped injury in some degree, and three were killed outright.

"The killed were Col. S. G. Mountford, a lawyer of New York city; Miss Roessle of Albany, daughter of the proprietor of the Delevan House; and Mr. Whittemore of Leicester, Mass. James Hagerman was badly injured—one leg broken—and taken away on a litter; Amasa Richardson of North Adams was much hurt by the handle of one of the seats being thrust into the fleshy part of his leg. Three ladies were seriously injured, and rendered unable to proceed; but they were well cared for at the place of the accident.

"A number of others were injured, but it is hoped, and believed, as yet, but slightly.—Among these was Mrs. Col. Dwight of Stockbridge.

Col. Mountford, one of those killed, was accompanied by a young daughter, whose bodily injuries were not serious, but whose mental agony at finding her beloved parent and only present friend stricken down in a horrid death, who can tell? Her conduct is described as most heart-rending on seeing the mangled and lifeless corpse of her father drawn from the ruins of the car.

When the train was finally stopped, the car to which the accident occurred was almost an entire wreck. The wheels were all torn off, the bottom broken through, and the seats smashed up. The bodies of the killed were mixed up with the wreck, and it was some time before they could be extricated. When they were found, they proved to be dreadfully mangled, and torn.

The third car was detached from the second just before the train was brought to a stand, and stopped short of the latter. But for this, it with its passengers might have shared in part, the fate of those before them.

The whole scene may be well imagined to be as described—frightful, appalling, terrible.—The disfigured bodies of the dead, the groans and cries of the wounded, the shrieks of frightened and bereaved females, the perfect wreck which the car presented, constitute the leading features of a picture, which those who witnessed it can never forget, and which those who were spared its sight may well pray never to have presented to their vision.

To Ladies.—Fruit stain may be readily removed from linen or cotton, simply by immersing the article, before being wet in suds, in clear, boiling water.
